What are we going to learn about?

- two ways to find an article with only partial citation information
- two strategies on how to find out information about a journal’s citation style
- comparison between reference/citation management software
Tracking a known citation: Advanced Google Scholar Search
Finding out information about a journal’s citation style

Google the Journal’s title and look at author instructions

Next look for references section in the guidelines

References

All citations in the text, figures or tables must be in the reference list and vice-versa. The references should only include articles that are published or accepted. Data sets that have been deposited in an online repository should be included in the reference list, include the version and unique identifier when available. For accepted but unpublished works use “in press” instead of page numbers. Unpublished data, submitted manuscripts, or personal communications should be cited within the text only, for the article types that allow such inclusions. Personal communications should be documented by a letter of permission. Website urls should be included as footnotes. Any inclusion of verbatim text must be contained in quotation marks and clearly reference the original source.

The following formatting styles are meant as a guide, as long as the full citation is complete and clear, Frontiers referencing style will be applied during typesetting.

- SCIENCE, ENGINEERING, and HUMANITIES: For articles submitted in the domains of SCIENCE, ENGINEERING and HUMANITIES please apply Author-Year system for in-text citations.

  Reference list: provide the names of the first six authors followed by et al and doi when available.

  In-text citations should be called according to the surname of the first author, followed by the year. For works by 2 authors include both surnames, followed by the year. For works by more than 2 authors include only the surname of the first author, followed by et al, followed by the year. For Humanities and Social Sciences articles please include page numbers in the in-text citations.
